Library Receives Papers Of Black Scholar, Activist, Rayford W. Logan

Rayford Whittingham Logan (1897–1982), author of The Betrayal of the Negro from Rutherford B. Hayes to Woodrow Wilson (New York: Collier Macmillan, 1965), The Diplomatic Relations of the United States with Haiti, 1776–1891 (Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina, 1941), and numerous other books and articles, bequeathed his diaries and correspondence to the Library's Manuscript Division.

During the decade of the 1940s Logan was a professor and chairman of the history department at Howard University in Washington, D.C., and was a political activist who worked closely with W. E. B. DuBois' PanAfrican Congress movement and supported a number of equal rights causes. The earliest volumes document Logan's efforts during World War II to guarantee full and equal participation by Afro-Americans in the military as well as in defense industries. He was chair of the Committee on the Participation of Negroes in the National Defense Program, a group which was instrumental in the Army's establishment of an aviation training program for Afro-Americans in Tuskegee, Ala.

Logan, a World War I veteran, was adamant in his demands that democracy, like charity, should begin at home. He conferred with other leaders such as A. Philip Randolph, the leader of the World War II March on Washington Committee; Walter White, executive director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People; and Mary McLeod Bethune, president of the National Council of Negro Women. Logan testified before congressional committees, met with individual Congressmen, and had several meetings with President Franklin D. Roosevelt and other White House officials.

The diaries include information about life and work at Howard University, Logan's leadership role in Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity, the Washington, D.C., social scene for the Afro-American elite, and the inconvenience and indignities of segregation in America. The diaries provide an excellent account of the challenges faced by an Afro-American scholar, especially during the years before integration. Logan, who was consciously writing for posterity, was sometimes candid, often newsy, regularly critical, and occasionally witty. His diaries provide an interesting chronicle of a crucial decade in the American civil rights movement.

The diaries span the years from 1940 to 1982. Those for 1940 to 1950 are currently open to researchers, and Dr. Logan's literary executor has determined that the next ten-year segments will be opened in 1993, 1998, and 2005, respectively. The correspondence (ca. 300 items), mostly between his wife, Ruth, and himself, is all available for research.

The diaries must be used in the Library and photoduplication is permitted only with the permission of the executor of Logan's estate.

Critic Denis Donoghue Speaks on T. S. Eliot

Irish author and critic Denis Donoghue will deliver a lecture titled, "The Scandal of T. S. Eliot," commemorating the centenary of Eliot's birth. The lecture, on Monday, September 26, at 8 p.m. in the Coolidge Auditorium, is presented with the support of the Naomi and Nehemiah Cohen Foundation; tickets are not required.

Commenting on the career and work of T. S. Eliot, Mr. Donoghue has written, "In the years since his death on January 4, 1965, his work has moved into classic status, but a widespread reaction against the High Modernism he defined–and rejection of the authority he seemed, as poet and critic, to claim–have made the current reading of Eliot once again tendentious. My lecture, to register this context, is called 'The Scandal of T. S. Eliot.' "

Denis Donoghue was born in Tullow, County Carlow, Ireland. He grew up in Warrenpoint, a small town in Northern Ireland, where his father was the local police sergeant. He attended school in Newry, County Down, and University College, Dublin, where he received his B.A. in 1949, his M.A. in 1953, and his Ph.D in 1962. He was professor of modern English and American literature at University College, Dublin; Fellow of King's College, Cambridge; and university lecturer in English at Cambridge University. For the past eight years, he has held the Henry James Chair of Letters at New York University.

Mr. Donoghue's books include The Third Voice (1959), Connoisseurs of Chaos (1965), Jonathan Swift (1969), Thieves of Fire (1973), Ferocious Alphabets (1981), We Irish (1986), Reading America (1987), and England, Their England (1988). He is the editor of Jonathan Swift: A Critical Anthology (1971), Memoirs by W. B. Yeats (1973), and Selected Essays of R. P. Blackmur (1986).

Mr. Donoghue is currently at work on two books: a memoir, "Warrenpoint," of his early years in Northern Ireland; and a book provisionally titled, "The Ghost of Walter Pater," a study of Pater's "presence" in modern literature.

MARC Update

Results of the July 1988 MARBI Meetings

Proposals

At the summer meetings of the American Library Association (ALA) in New Orleans, July 9–12, seven USMARC format proposals were considered by the ALA RTSD/LITA/RASD Committee on Representation in Machine-Readable Form of Bibliographic Information (MARBI) and other interested ALA participants. These proposals were described in the LC Information Bulletin, June 6, p. 226–228. The results of the ALA discussion and the subsequent consideration of the proposals by the Library of Congress are summarized below.

The major proposal to be considered again was that pertaining to format integration.

☐ Proposal 88-1: Format Integration This proposal, which called for the integration of the USMARC bibliographic formats for all types of materials–books, serials, archival and manuscripts control, maps, music, visual materials, and computer files, was approved. The proposal basically consisted of 40 specific proposals, most of which had to do with the deletion or the making obsolete of content designators which had never been defined or which were no longer useful, and a general proposal to define all remaining data elements for all forms of material. The general proposal was approved with various amendments, and 32 of the 40 specific proposals were approved. Several of the items approved pertained to the use of field 246 (Varying Form of Title) for the recording of variant titles associated with the item in hand (whether on the piece or cataloger constructed). Field 740 would only be used for analytic titles not in heading form and for related titles not in heading form.

Three proposals pertained to additions/changes needed to the USMARC authority format.

☐ Proposal 88-5: Additions/Changes to Byte 2 in Subfield ‡w for Authorities The addition of code "o - Earlier established form of heading (Other authority file)" to byte 2 (Earlier form of heading) of subfield ‡w (Control subfield) was approved.

☐ Proposal 88-6: Changes to Field 667 in the Authority Format The proposal, which called for changes to field 667 (Name Usage or Scope Note) so that the field could be used in subject authority records for the recording of validity information associated with earlier forms of a 150 (Heading–Topical Term) subject heading and with the 150 subject heading itself, was deferred. Those present at the meeting felt that a discussion paper needs to be written on the principles of defining notes in the authority format.

☐ Proposal 88-7: Addition of Field 677 to the Authority Format This proposal, which pertained to field 677 (Subject Synthesis Information) being defined to enable one to record information or instructions on using the term in field 150 (Heading–Topical Term) in indexing or cataloging situtations for subject purposes, was deferred. It will be incorporated in the discussion paper noted above.

The remaining three proposals pertained to the USMARC bibliographic format.

☐ Proposal 88-4: Make Code "y" in 008/24-27 for Books/Serials Obsolete The recommendation to make code "y - Yearbooks" in 008/24-27 (Nature of contents) for books and 008/24 (Nature of entire work) and 25-27 (Nature of contents) for serials obsolete was approved.

☐ Proposal 88-9: Changes Needed to Fields 033 and 518 The changes recommended to field 033 (Date and Place of Capture/Finding) (and also to field 518 (Date and Place of Capture/Finding Note)) so as to enable one to record broadcast date/time information, were approved.

☐ Proposal 88-10: Addition of Field 654 to the Bibliographic Format The addition of field 654 (Subject Added Entry–Faceted Topical Heading) was approved. The field will enable users (such as those using the Art and Architecture Thesaurus) to label the facet or hierarchy from which each term found in a topical subject expression on a bibliographic record came and also to specify which term is the focus term of the expression.

Note: One proposal, 88-8: Adding a Field Orientation Code in Subfield ‡6 of Field 880, had been sent out for a mail vote, with responses due by June 1. The addition of a field orientation code to subfield ‡6 of field 880 (Alternate Graphic Representation) in the bibliographic format was approved. The code is an explicit signal that a field is to be displayed from right to left.

Discussion Papers

Four discussion papers were considered.

☐ Discussion Paper No. 20: Series Statement/Added Entry Issues The results of the discussion were as follows. (1) There was no consensus to define the second indicator in field 490 as "Nonfiling characters" or to define a subfield to indicate the number of characters associated with relationship data appearing at the beginning of the field. It was felt that field 490 should be included in a generalized study of the issue of nonfiling characters. (2) There was no consensus to write a proposal to subfield or otherwise change the handling of caption designator information currently being recorded in subfield ‡v (Volume or number) of the 4XX, 800–830 fields. (3) The Library of Congress was asked to write a proposal calling for making field 440 (and also fields 400–411) obsolete.

☐ Discussion Paper No. 21: Communication of Records for Multiple Versions Those present favored the separate record approach presented in the paper. Various concerns were voiced. A discussion paper on a generalized linkage field, indicating the relationship of the field to the 760–787, 700–740, and 240 fields will be written.

☐ Discussion Paper No. 22: Cross Reference Problem in Authority Records The paper was withdrawn as more work is needed.

☐ Discussion Paper No. 23: Treatment of CD-ROM in the USMARC Format The consensus was that no changes (particularly the definition of a 007 Physical Description Fixed Field) are needed to the computer file format specifications. The feeling was that the format, as currently written, can cope with the changing developments of computer files, including CD-ROM.

Documentation

Minutes of the July 1988 MARBI meetings, the revised cover sheets/pages to the proposals and discussion papers just noted, and other related material are available from the Library of Congress Cataloging Distribution Service (CDS) as part of the subscription service, USMARC Format: Proposed Changes. A one-year subscription to this service consists of four mailings and costs $35. For the 1988 subscription year, CDS is offering a half-year subscription, which includes the last two of the four 1988 packets, for $20. Packet no. 3 for 1988 will include the entire revised Format Integration proposal (88-1) as approved by the Library of Congress and MARBI. For further information write CDS, Library of Congress, Washington, DC 20541; or telephone (202) 287-6100.

Japanese Language Catalogers Are Honored

An Incentive Award Ceremony was held by the Processing Services Department on June 30 to honor the 13 descriptive catalogers of the Japanese Language Section, Shared Cataloging Division, who worked voluntarily to alleviate a large backlog of Japanese-language materials in the division's Preparatory Cataloging Section. This backlog was caused by staff shortages in the summer of 1987 that resulted in serious workflow problems in the creation of new preliminary records on the RLIN (Research Libraries Information Network) system.

Realizing the importance of providing timely input to RLIN, and despite the additional tasks of preparing full input of new records into the RLIN system, as well as their regular descriptive cataloging duties, the Japanese Language Section descriptive catalogers maintained the section's productivity. The catalogers were: Teruyo Adams, Kimiko Devadas, Tomoko Flavin, Manae Fujishiro, Anri Kuwatsuki, Florence Park, Samuel Park, Susanna Park, Teruko Proctor, Hisako Rogerson, Noriko Sugai, Sumiko Takaramura, and Wei-ying Ting.

Isamu Tsuchitani and Soon Sigworth, head and assistant head of the section, recognized the significant value of their staff's voluntary efforts by recommending the section's catalogers for a Special Achievement Group Award and a cash award.

Division chief Michael H. Shelley opened the special ceremony, the first of its kind in the department, with a review of the group's accomplishments, emphasizing the significance of the staff's recognizing the problem and initiating the solution by volunteering to undertake the added work. He also read aloud the congratulatory letter sent to the catalogers from Librarian of Congress James H. Billington. Director of cataloging Lucia J. Rather congratulated the catalogers for their important contribution and praised them for their initiative, flexibility, dedication, and hard work.

During the ceremony, assistant librarian for processing services Henriette D. Avram presented each cataloger with a special Incentive Award Certificate. She stated that the Library of Congress contributes 50 percent of the Japanese records to the RLIN database. Mrs. Avram

Micro User Group Plans Survey of Members

The Micro User Group (MUG), a special interest group of the Online Users Group sponsored by the Automated Systems Office (ASO), is updating its mailing list and surveying its members.

MUG's major objectives are: (1) to foster the general exchange of information among users of microcomputers at the Library of Congress, and (2) to foster communication among users of particular software packages. MUG sponsors monthly one-hour programs.

The goal of the MUG questionnaire is to gather information on the microcomputer-related interests and information needs of Library staff members to assist in planning future programs. Those who wish to be added to the Micro User Group mailing list and receive a copy of the questionnaire should contact Joe Marsala (ASO) via eMAIL or on ext. 79609.

Maryvonne Mavroukakis Earns 20-Year Pin

Maryvonne Mavroukakis, a cataloging section head in the Serial Record Division, recently received a pin commemorating her 20 years of Federal service, all of which have been in serials cataloging at the Library of Congress.

Born near Limoges, France, Ms. Mavroukakis holds a bachelor's degree in literature and modern languages from the Université d'Orléans and a graduate degree in library science from the Ecole nationale supérieure des bibliothécaires in Paris.

Ms. Mavroukakis began her career at the Library in April 1968 as a cataloger in the Serials Section of the Descriptive Cataloging Division (which in June of that year became part of the Serial Record Division). Although she did not become a U.S. citizen until 1974, Ms. Mavroukakis' extensive background in the Romance languages made her particularly valuable to the Library at a time when these skills were hard to find. In September 1985, Ms. Mavroukakis became the assistant head of Cataloging Section II in the Serial Record Division and in May 1988 became the head of the section.

Prior to becoming a supervisor, Ms. Mavroukakis assisted the Library by translating French documents into English. She also studied Greek and cataloged serials in modern Greek, in addition to those in Romance languages.

Ms. Mavroukakis' primary interest is early Renaissance music. She studied the viola for many years at the conservatory in Orléans and now plays the recorder. She is the president of the Library of Congress Welfare and Recreation Association Recorder Club. In addition to music, Ms. Mavroukakis enjoys swimming, cooking, and travel. She is the mother of two children.

James Critzer Retires

James A. Critzer, head of the Clearing Section, Order Division, retired on July 1 after almost 31 years of Federal service, more than 21 of which were at the Library. Supervisors said farewell at a picnic at the home of the assistant chief on June 18, and co-workers and friends wished him well at a gathering in the Order Division on June 23.

Mr. Critzer's entire Library career was spent in the Order Division. He was appointed as a voucher examiner in the Invoice Unit in January 1968. In March of that same year he was promoted to the position of acquisitions assistant in the Inspection Unit. In February 1971 he was promoted to assistant supervisor of the Inspection Unit, and through reorganization became assistant head of the Clearing Section. He was promoted to the position of head of the Clearing Section in December 1986.

Mr. Critzer received outstanding performance ratings in 1976, 1984, and 1985, and quality increases in 1976 and 1985, for his sustained high-quality performance.

Mr. Critzer had increasing responsibilities in all of the positions he occupied; however, in the positions of assistant head and head of the Clearing Section he served as a specialist on blanket orders. Mr. Critzer's contributions and suggestions to the acquisitions and processing activities of the Library have added significantly to the efficiency of the Library's programs. Through hard work and flexibility in management style, he successfully supervised a staff of 17 professionals and technicians.

Mr. Critzer has moved to Asheville, N.C., where he is pursuing a life of leisure, a major part of which will include his favorite sport, golf.

noted how the efforts of these 13 catalogers equalized the workload and ensured that the work moved through the section so that bibliographic records for Japanese publications were available as quickly as possible to RLIN member libraries and to users within the Library of Congress.

STAFF NEWS

Special Achievement Group Awards, formerly acknowledged in a library-wide ceremony but now acknowledged at the department level, are bestowed on deserving staff members to recognize and encourage dedication and excellent service.

Nelson A. Parker Dies

Nelson A. Parker, retired head of the former National Union Catalog Publication Section of the Catalog Publication Division, died on August 17 at the age of 72.

Mr. Parker retired from the Library in November 1971 after 34 years of Government service, more than 26 of which were at the Library.

A native Washingtonian, Mr. Parker was a graduate of Dunbar High School and attended both Howard University and the Agricultural and Technical College in Greensboro, N.C., where he specialized in English and physical education. After holding positions in the U.S. Court of Appeals and the U.S. Post Office, he served in the U.S. Army from October 1943 to January 1946.

Mr. Parker began his career with the Library in February 1946 as a card drawer in the Card Division and then transferred to the former Catalog Maintenance Division in March 1947 as a filer. Two years later, he was promoted to editorial assistant. Mr. Parker held progressively more responsible positions, including editorial assistant and technical foreman in 1952. He was assistant editor of the Quinquennial Author Catalog, 1953; the Armed Forces Medical Library Catalog, 1955; the Miscellaneous Catalog, 1959; and the National Union Catalog, Author List, 1963. In July 1970, he was promoted to editor and head of the National Union Catalog (NUC) Publication Section, the position he held when he retired.

Mr. Parker was recognized as an expert in the production aspects of the NUC and received official recognition for his unusually high-quality production rates and for his initiative.

Mr. Parker is survived by his wife Helen, two children, and five grandchildren. A service was held in his honor on August 22 at the Lincoln Temple United Church of Christ in Washington, D.C.

Staff Activities

Frederick M. Kaiser, a specialist in American national government in the Government Division of the Congressional Research Service, spoke on the American election campaign process to a group of visiting diplomats, government officials, political party leaders, scholars, and journalists from 34 different countries on August 29. The group is in the United States for the next month, as part of a U.S. Information Agency-sponsored project, "The 1988 Election Campaign." Mr. Kaiser's remarks introduced them to the basic characteristics of the U.S. system of government, political parties, and elections. Earlier in the summer, Mr. Kaiser spoke on some of the same topics to visiting parliamentarians from Morocco and Egypt, and to members of the Commission on Research, Development, and Evaluation from Taiwan.

Zenon E. Kohut, senior research specialist, Federal Research Division, participated in a seminar on "Russian Imperialism and the Soviet Union" held in Melbourne, Australia, on June 24 and 25. During the seminar, Mr. Kohut presented a paper on "Ukraine and Belorussia," chaired a panel on "Economic and Cultural Consequences," and took part in a panel discussion on "Gorbachev's Dilemmas." Some of the other panelists included Bohdan Bociurkiw, Robert Conquest, and Harry Rigby. Following the seminar, Mr. Kohut gave a number of lectures at Australian universities and scholarly associations. He also visited the Australian National Library and examined its Slavic holdings.

Rosemary Fry Plakas, American history specialist in the Rare Book and Special Collections Division, presented a slide-talk on rare books associated with Christopher Columbus at the June 21 meeting of the Friends of the Kansas City (Kans.) Public Library in Kansas City. She used slides representing 25 items from five rare book collections to illustrate her talk that discussed books that may have influenced Columbus, contemporary reports and the impact of discovery, and how the 300th and 400th anniversaries of discovery were celebrated. She also compared the 19th-century facsimile editions of the Genoa and Paris copies of Columbus' book of privileges, 1502, and traced the saga of the missing Columbus codex and how it became a top treasure of the Library of Congress.

Ms. Plakas was also interviewed by National Public Radio's affiliate at the University of Missouri at Kansas City. She discussed the impact of Columbus' discovery on the old world.

This summer Ms. Plakas was installed on the Alumni Executive Council of Park College, Kansas City, Mo., for a three-year term and reelected chair of the Acquisitions Committee of its Historical Society.
